(b) A Protocol has been signed on April 17, 1989 between Indian Space Research Organisation and GLAVKOSMOS, USSR on Indian participation in Soviet MIR Space Station based on discussions held during April 11-17, 1989, at Indian Space Research Organisation, Bangalore. A five-member Soviet delegation visited India to have discussions with Indian experts. Presentations were made by the Soviet side on the technical details about the existing and future MIR space stations and by the Indian side on possible Indian experiments that could be carried out onboard the PRIRODA module of the present MIR station to be launched by 1991 and onboard future MIR type station to be launched by 1995-96. These possible experiments covered such broad areas as crystal growth under microgravity environment, astronomy, aeronomy, remote sensing and also testing of certain technological concepts under zero-g conditions. Brief write ups on these proposals with questionnaire addressing specific payload interface issues were handed over to the Soviet side for their response. A plan of action has been drawn jointly to pursue the matter further.
